

Letters to the editor

Dear Sir,

At present I am working on my own in Dorset getting groups going--whilst.

Whilst I am making progress, I am finding great difficulty in handling the situation alone. I am therefore looking for a person/persons to share what I am doing. Besides sharing in the general coordination I am also eager to co-lead some groups with anyone with whom a genuine rapport is realised. My personal inclination is to work with a woman as part of, possibly, a greater relationship of living, loving, and growing together.

Whilst I am currently living in Dorset I am not committed to living there although I have a preference for the South West of England. I would also be interested in travelling to centres in other countries. I am also interested, one day, in being part of a therapeutic community.

My basic orientation is Gestalt Therapy, Sensory Awareness and Encounter with some bodywork (including T'ai Chi and massage), and I am currently engaged in developing my skills in these fields as well as working on my personal growth.

I will be happy to meet anyone who is at all interested in the above, so that we may discover further the possibilities of cooperation.

Beverley Edwards (Mr.)

Bridport.

Dear Sir,

The Autumn school term is a good time to take stock. There are many people among Self and Society readers who are capable of conducting courses at adult education institutes, technical colleges or polytechnics, either evening course or one-day-a-week release courses for the professions and students dealing with groups (e.g. teachers, probation officers, social workers, mental health nurses, doctors, personnel officers in management and unions, etc. etc.) as well as ordinary men and women who may want to take a greater interest in their own community. The potential is enormous, and most evening centres principals are eager to find tutors/organisers/publicists to assist them to put on successful courses. I enclose a draft scheme that may be helpful to anyone interested.

Best wishes,

Hans Lobstein

Ealing

Copies of the draft scheme can be obtained on sending s.a.e. to Self and Society.

CIRCULATION OF THE LIGHT

there is wizardry
in what manner & by what processes
stars become dust

Ken Edwards