

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I would be grateful if you would publish this letter for I am currently engaged in some research work about counselling and psychotherapy in relation to values-attitudes-politics and could use the knowledge and experience of as many people as possible.

Do you have or do you know of any published or unpublished books, magazine pieces, essays research papers, jokes, cartoons, new material, book lists, references, documents, client views, training responses, student perceptions, definitions of the terms 'counselling' and 'psychotherapy', art and literature references, newspaper cuttings, discussion papers, poems-song drawings, tapes-films, journals, ideas - opinions - views - reactions - responses, in any way related to counselling/psychotherapy values, attitudes and politics?

If you do, then please contact me. If you send stuff directly will you please give me as much information about it as possible, including permission to quote should the material be your own. The present intention is to publish the results of this research at some later stage and clearly the research will take time. Therefore, do respond at any time, regardless of when this letter appears. Thank you.

Yours sincerely,

Richard McMullen, Counsellor

The Editor,

May I suggest that you refuse to accept the ads for Dianetics.

One cannot object to a book of course, but correspondents are here introduced to an address.

Perhaps you are innocent enough not to know what you are doing here?

Best wishes,

Geoff
