Sir,

I have heard recently of two separate Gestalt groups, being run by two different people, where the leader did not explain what the group was all about. And never gave any teaching about the theory. One person went to a series of such session, and told me that she never found out what was supposed to be going on from beginning to end.

Fritz Perls never did this kind of thing, and I wonder where this practice sprang up from. Can any gestalt leader justify it?
