

Letters to the Editor

The Editor
Self & Society

Dear Editor,

I was very annoyed by the inclusion of my letter in the April edition of "Self and Society", in particular because it was written personally to Hans Lobstein at his home address with no clause about inclusion in your magazine. In addition, it was only partially reproduced, and out of context. My purpose in sharing details of my uneventful career was to request from the addressee any useful articles on the subject of my dissertation. The final paragraph of that letter makes it clear that I was asking for information and not conducting an exercise in trumpet-blowing.

Yours sincerely,
